RE: Symposium on May 7, 2020

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

As late as a few days ago, I thought that our Symposium might be far enough out that we could plan ahead and around the current health emergency. It has become quite clear that we will be unable to hold the Symposium on May 7, as planned.

I have already reached out to several of our Senior Leaders to determine best known dates at this time and dates to be avoided as we work availability. Joe Connell is already working with the Mystic Marriott in Groton to coordinate options around what they already have scheduled and the other rescheduling challenges they face. We must also be aware of other competing events already scheduled this year later than May. I am optimistic that we can establish a new date very soon.

We appreciate your patience and support during this difficult process. Planning a Symposium is hard, but planning the same event twice is very challenging. We will make it happen.

Thank you, and best regards:

Joe
